BRECKENRIDGE NEWS

A Newspaper Man's Opinion of this Journal and its Editors.

THE BRECKENRIDGE News, which is conceded to be the best county paper in the State of Kentucky, owes its existence to John D. Babbage, managing editor and senior member of the publishing firm.

John D. Babbage has been a hard worker all his life. A man of splendid vitality and possessed of a wealth of energy and that dogged determination that is the parent of all successful effort, he has left no stone unturned that would contribute to the welfare and perfection of the people of his city, the Breckkenridge News.

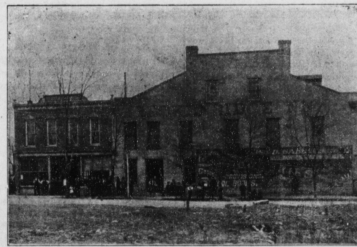

Mr. Babbage was born in Cloverport, July 22, 1848. He received his education in the Cloverport schools. Before he had entered his teens he began to show the stuff that was in him, and his first efforts toward making a livelihood demonstrated the truth of the axiom that "the boy is father to the man."

He earned his first dollar as a newsboy and, by the way, he was the first person to engage in that vocation in Cloverport. He sold the Courier-Journal on the sides of this city before the war, and charged the good people ten cents per copy.

Mr. Babbage was the first agent for the Adams express company in this city and many of the older citizens remember the package that he drove about the streets. "Kate," the venerable mule that furnished the motive power of the delivery wagon, was quite a character in her way and in her humble capacity materially helped in laying the future career of the young express agent.

The next venture Mr. Babbage engaged in was the opening of a book and news depot. It was quite successful and then it was only natural that he should get an amateur printing press and a few fonts of type. After securing this limited paraphernalia of a printing office he began a small sheet called the "Monthly Advertiser" and started in on a campaign of education and through this modest sheet our merchants learned their first lessons as to the value of advertising. In July, 1876, the Breckkenridge News was started. It was named by the late Judge John Allen Murray. From its inception to the present time it has been eminently successful. "All the news that's fit to print," has been the motto that Mr. Babbage has endeavored to live up to in his career as Editor of the paper. The News has an individuality peculiar to its own. It is a beautiful paper, typographically, and has always been well edited. It has never been the organ of any clique or party, but has always been outspoken in its commendation of the right and condemnation of the wrong. It possesses a backbone and this with its well known conservatism makes it a journal that is reliable because of its sincerity, truthfulness and fearlessness.

The News is first, last, and all the time a home newspaper for home people. It does not aspire to the distinction of being a political exponent. It aims to give all the news of its town and county and devote its editorial columns to the up-building of the resources of Breckkenridge county and Cloverport. It tries to keep out of the rut of insular prejudice and provincial narrowness and is broad-minded and public spirited in its policy. Judging from the high-toned praise it has achieved these intentions have been fully carried out.

John D. Babbage is admired and loved by all who know him. He possesses a strong, manly character, endowed with the caution, steadiness and energy of the typical American business man and that quality that is denominated "bustling" he is bound to make a success of any undertaking he engages in. He is proverbially honest and no man stands higher in the community for integrity than he.

The special edition, containing as it does, over a ton of paper and presenting 10,000 copies of the handomest special edition that was ever heard of in the state of Kentucky is a monument to his public spirit and enterprise. This paper contains a complete description of the resources and advantages of Breckkenridge cannot do without it," is legion. The plant used in publishing the paper and in turning out the job work is very extensive and it involved a cost of thousands of dollars to equip it.

V. G. Babbage Associate Editor and Junior Partner.

THE Hardinsburg department of the BRECKENRIDGE News has always been one of the most attractive features of this paper. It is conducted by V. G. Babbage, associate editor and junior partner of the News publishing company.

Mr. Babbage was born in Cloverport in 1854 and received a common school education. He remained in Cloverport until he attained the age of twenty-one, when he went to Hardinsburg to locate. He clerked in a store there for ten years. During that time he built up a splendid reputation for honesty and business ability and when a vacancy occurred in the Master-commissionership, he was appointed to that office. The appointment was granted by Judge Jones Stewart in August, 1878. Mr. Babbage held the office continuously for twenty years and his administration of its affairs was of such a splendid character, that it won for him a host of friends in all parts of the county.

Recently Mr. Babbage relinquished the office and now devotes himself exclusively to his newspaper work and the practice of law.

V. G. BABBAGE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR OF THE NEWS.

sively to his newspaper work and the practice of law.

V. G. Babbage is recognized as being one of the best attorneys of the Breckkenridge bar. He was licensed to practice law in 1882 and from that time to this has been very successful in his profession.

Mr. Babbage is the associate editor of this paper and a part owner. He wields a trenchant pen, having a clear, lucid style. He takes great pride in newspaper work and some of the most valuable features of this paper are the products of his gifted mind.

Mr. Babbage possesses a genial personality. He is the son of good nature and the native honesty and integrity of character that are so prominent attributes in his make up has made him universally popular.

Mr. Babbage is a man of strong convictions and is intensely loyal to the principle he espouses and does not right. He is a faithful and valuable member of the Methodist church and is president of the County Sunday-school Association.

Ernest Courtney Babbage—Local Editor, Breckkenridge News.

PROBABLY there is not another young man connected with the rural press in the state of Kentucky that possesses the news sense to a greater degree than E. C. Babbage, local editor of the Breckkenridge News. Although young in years he is old in the wisdom that is essential to the successful newspaper man. He fully realizes and appreciates what constitutes news and this rare discernment makes him a most important factor in contributing to the prestige the News has attained.

E. C. Babbage was born in Cloverport Sept. 18, 1871, and was practically raised in a newspaper office. He set type when other children were playing, not because he was forced to, but because he took to it as a duck does to water.

He possesses business talents of a high order and there is no limit to his enterprise. He is an unostentatious and quiet young man but he is such a loyal friend to those whom he likes and there is that quality of good citizenship about him that he will never want for friends that will stick to him until the crack of doom.

Ernest Babbage has the mature discernment and shrewdness of age, and the impulsive, warm-hearted generosity of youth. He is a hard worker and there is no limit to his capacity for accomplishing difficult tasks.

With his splendid personality, his moral endorsement, and his gifted talents he will in a few years rank first among Kentucky newspaper men.

BUILDING LUMBER

LOUISVILLE, KY.

STAIR WORK OF ALL KINDS.
ESTIMATES CHEERFULLY FURNISHED.

FALLS CITY PLANNING MILL.

Louisville's Leading Lumber and Builders' Supply Depot.

LOUISVILLE possesses no firm that is more popular in the building trade than the J. P. Will Lumber Company, whose immense planing mill and mammoth lumber yard are situated at 1900 and 1905 High Avenue in that city. The planing mill, a massive structure, is equipped with all the best machinery produced for the purpose by human ingenuity. It has a capacity for turning out all kinds of saw, doors, blinds, mouldings and pieces for ornamental architectural work. The Falls City Planing Mill, as it is popularly known, is headquarters for doors, sash, blinds, building lumber, hardware, paint, etc. The company has a very extensive stock, that requires several acres of area to store it. The firm is qualified to fill all orders for material however small or extensive they may be. It makes a specialty of out of town shipment and guarantees perfect service, low prices, prompt attention and above all complete satisfaction. The firm has been the favorite of this county for years. P. Will, its founder, was a man noted for his sterling integrity. He was as honest as the day is long and the people loved him for this quality. They gave him their trade knowing that their best interests would be conscientiously cared for. The mantle of the father has fallen upon the sons and they have inherited his rugged honesty as well as superior business talents. The firm is one of the oldest, most enterprising and most extensive south of the Ohio river, and we commend all possible patrons to it for honest goods honest prices and honest dealings.

A LITTLE SUFFERER.

Face, Hands and Arms Covered With Scarcely Noticeable Humors—How a Cure Was Effected.

"When five years old my little boy had scrofula on his face, hands and arms. It was worst on his chin, although the sores on his cheeks and hands were very bad. It appeared in the form of red pimples which would break open and run and then seal over. After disappearing they would break out again. They caused intense itching and the little sufferer had to be watched continually to keep him from scratching the sores. We became greatly alarmed at his condition. My wife's mother had had scrofula and she told me that she had never since returned to health and it has never since returned."

THE WOMEN IN WAR.

GARDFIELD, Ky.—When women feel and respond to the call of patriotism it comes from the heart. When men go forth to war they go with the song, "It is glorious to die for our country." There is the inspiring music, the good comradeship in arms, the sense of continual action, that great flag before them, the women have their blood, they give themselves in patriotic struggles, for they know the bloody footprints that must be traversed to reach the end. They give their hearts and souls while we men give our bodies.

There is no great movement effort which is without the encouragement and sustaining support of women. The women are the fosterers of patriotism. The Cuban rebellion would not last a month if the Cuban women were not as the men, and therefore in the ultimate triumph of liberty in Cuba, the women should be honored as well as their husbands and brothers and fathers.

A little story will illustrate the place of flag occupies in the feminine mind: Just before the battle of Gettysburg, when her big brother was starting for the campaign and had heard a great deal of soldiers and patriotism and the flag, a little girl sat on her grandfather's lap at sunset and watched the stars come out. She was a very little girl and the sight was unusual to her.

"Why, grandpa," she exclaimed, "what are those lights?"

"The stars my dear," he answered.

"The stars, but where are the stripes?"

"She was a fitting daughter of America, for the stars and stripes that must be separated in her heart."

The redoubtable Bill Ashby, the king pin in the nursery business in Northern Kentucky, is not deterred from making arrangements for a baby's clothing, for war or rumors of war. He bought 25,000 plants which he is setting out. He expects a good crop, and says that he will supply the boys in blue with strawberry preserves if they succeed in joining the army of occupation in Cuba.

Have You Kidney Trouble.

SYRUP OF PEPsin

BRECKENRIDGE COUNTY.

The Crown Jewel in the Diadem of the State.

Rich in its Industrial and Agricultural Possibilities.

Founded by The Heroic Indian Fighter and Hardy Pioneer, Gen. Wm. Hardin.

A SKETCH OF ITS NUMEROUS RESOURCES.

Where lawns extend that scorn Arcadian pride
And brighter streams that fam'd Hyades gleith.

Oldsmith.

A TYPICAL BRECKENRIDGE COUNTY HOME—THE RESIDENCE OF JOHN WIMPY, NEAR IRVINGTON.

BRECKENRIDGE is one of the richest counties in Kentucky lying along the Ohio river. It has a population of about 22,000.

The surface is made up of rich bottom lands, high plateaus, and hilly regions. The bottom lands on the Ohio contain some of the richest farms in the state and the famous "Blue-grass" region does not show as great a measure of prosperity as is apparent on these beautiful estates.

The valley farms are composed of rich blue-grass lands and make up the best stock raising and dairy farming section of the world.

The high plateaus make the richest tobacco lands in Kentucky and produce a superior quality of the weed.

The hill sides will eventually make up the world's greatest orchard and will also be the seat of the nursery business of this country in a few generations.

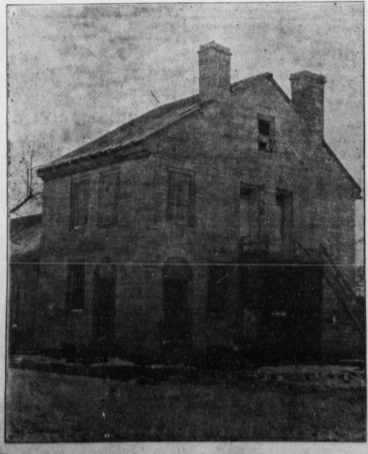

While tobacco is the staple crop of the county all kinds of farm products are grown in profusion and it is doubtful if another county in the state shows a larger measure of wealth and prosperity than Breckenridge.

The county is watered by Clover Creek, Rock Lick, Hardin, North Fork of Rough, Dorets, Brushy Fork and Sinking Creek. They all give perfect drainage and their waters make this one of the best watered sections of Kentucky.

ITS MINERAL PRODUCTS.

Breckenridge county is peculiarly made up, speaking from a geological point of view.

The canal coal mines in the extreme southwestern part of the county produce the best canal coal in the world. The deposits are all found in one hill and the nearest deposits known to geologists are over 200 miles away. These mines have been extensively worked for years by a wealthy English syndicate.

with the oil pool lying in between in the vicinity of Indian creek.

NATURAL CURIOSITIES.

In common with other counties in the limestone district of Kentucky, Breckenridge has her full share of natural curiosities.

Sinking Creek is one of them and is appropriately named. It rises about fifteen miles east of Harboursburg and flows in a northerly direction. Eight or ten miles from its source it suddenly sinks into the ground and for about ten miles it runs under ground. Its "dry bed" is only filled when the stream is at flood height. Five miles from its mouth is the "fall" a natural mill dam that was utilized for its power many years ago.

CAVES.

Along Sinking creek can be found many wonderful caves, some of them very large in extent. Two or three miles above Clifton Mills, on the creek, is the famous Penitentiary Cave. It has never been fully explored but it is known to be rich in the wonderful magnificence of its stalactites and stalagmites. There are several caves in the county that contain underground streams.

HISTORICAL.

The pioneer of Breckenridge county was General William Hardin. He represented the highest type of frontiersman. He was as brave as a lion and as enterprising as the typical business man of this generation. In his veins flowed the blood of the nobility of France. He was descended from one of the leading Huguenot families of that country, the members seeking the wilderness of this country to escape religious persecution. General Hardin came to this country in 1780. Accompanying him were several pioneers whose names are borne by the best families that now inhabit this county. They were the Claytons, Breckers, Brunses, Bagners, Haynes, Rices, Jollys, Bars, Deanes and Spencers. The settlers were attacked by Indians at Big Spring and one of their number killed.

A year later Gen. Hardin, accompanied by several brave companions, returned to this county and established Hardin's Fort, at what is now Harboursburg. It was a rule frontier outpost and marked the picket line of civilization in the Southwest for many years.

General William Hardin was a great Indian fighter. No man that ever penetrated the wilds of Kentucky in that early day was better acquainted with the trickery and treachery of the red man. He understood woodcraft perfectly and his success at capturing the murderous arrow, knife, tomahawk and bullet of his aboriginal foe made them believe that he bore a charmed life. They called him "Big Bill." It was due largely to Hardin's magnificent fighting qualities that the Indians were beaten back from Breckenridge and the frontier established farther west.

Hardin's remains lie buried to day in an obscure spot and no sarcophagus nor monument marks the spot. Although by his bravery and his services to the state he is left to posterity the richest of all.

THE BIG RED APPLE,

The Juicy Peach And Delicious Pear Reach Perfection Here.

THE WORLD'S BEST ORCHARD

Fruit Lands Better Than a Klondike Can be Had For a Song.

THE WINE OF THE WEST.

Is Sweetest and Best, That Grows by The Beautiful River.

THERE is not another section of the United States better entitled to the name of being the home of the "big red apple" than Breckenridge.

The thousands of acres of broken land in the county, protected from the cold winds of winter or from unseasonable frosts in the late spring cannot be excelled for apple raising. Their exposure to the sun and the large proportion of lime and magnesia in the soil contribute to a healthy growth and a splendid flavor in the fruit.

It has only been a few years since the apple industry has been engaged in extensively in this county, but in that time it has been perfectly demonstrated that it is a profitable and money making business.

The yield has always been extensive, even in years when most sections of the country suffered from crop failures.

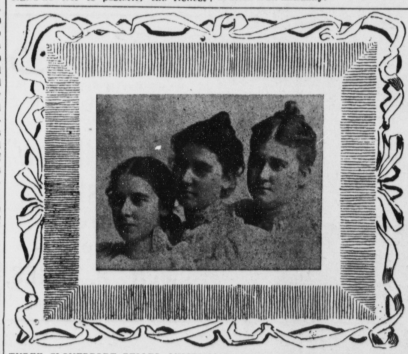

The fruit produced in Breckenridge county is noted for its superiority of shape, color and flavor. It is in great demand for export and market trade and choice fruit always commands the top market price.

This fruit belt is hundreds of miles nearer to the great markets of the country than the apple orchards of Missouri and Kansas that are now attracting so much attention. Freight rates by rail and river are much cheaper here than in the west and this secures a larger margin of profit to the grower.

Another advantage that apple growers possess here over Western orchardists is the fact that there need be no waste of fruit.

The choice apples always command a strong market and are readily sold, while culls and second grade fruit can be sold to the berry distilleries and fruit evaporators at stiff prices.

Almost every community has its brandy distillery and they are so numerous and they that they consume all the extra portion of the fruit crop. The evaporators, too, turn out a large supply of dried fruit annually.

THREE CLOVERPORT BELLES, MISSES MARGARET, ELIZABETH, AND MARION HOWNER.

PEACHES.

Even the little state of Delaware, so long known as the great peach orchard in the world, cannot compete with Breckenridge county so far as the perfection in the color, size and flavor of the peach is concerned.

The best peaches in the world are grown here. They are large, beautiful in color and delicious in flavor. Because of their delicacy they cannot be shipped great distances to market, but the demand that exists at Louisville, Evansville, Henderson, Owensboro and Cincinnati for this fruit is unlimited and guarantees a profitable market.

PEARS.

The pear is the coming fruit in this section. Breckenridge is naturally adapted to the growth of this fruit. It reaches its best development in growth, color and flavor among the sunny hills of this section. One man in this county owns over $100 an acre of dwarf pears last year. There are pear trees in the neighborhood of Stephensport that have been bearing for the past sixty years and are yet strong, healthy and vigorous trees.

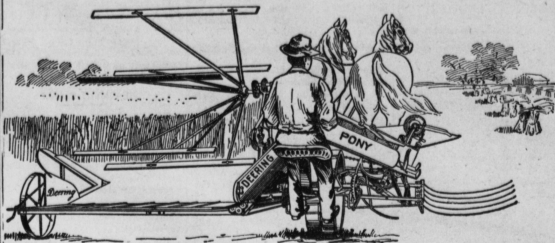

SMALL FRUIT.

One of the leading industries on the hill farms on both sides of the Ohio river is the raising of small fruits and berries. Thousands of acres are planted in currants, gooseberries, plums, strawberries, blackberries and raspberries. Notwithstanding the immense production the amount of small fruit raised does not near satisfy the demands of the market. There are yet thousands of acres of land that are adapted to the growth of small fruits and berries and they can be bought at low prices.

THE HEALING WATERS FLOW

From Rocky Glen and Woodland Fen, In Fair Old Breckenridge.

The Wonderful Healing Powers of Tar Springs Known to Indian and Pioneer.

AN IDEALLY ROMANTIC RESORT.

The medicinal virtues of the numerous mineral springs of Breckenridge county are traditional. They were known to the Indians long before the dawn of the white man's civilization on this continent.

This was natural ground and the tribal foemen respected the right of friend and foe to find succor from pain and recuperate broken health by the use of the healing waters of the springs.

It was not until the white man came that the war-whoop was raised and the subtle arrow sent on its mission of death in the great wilderness surrounding these springs. Away back, in the early days, the pioneers placed implicit faith in the curative properties of the waters of the famous Tar Springs.

When broken in health they would repair to this fountain of healing and the use of its magic waters would mend them physically.

Year by year, as the country advanced in population and civilization, the fame of Tar Springs grew, until just before the war it became one of the best and most fashionable health resorts in Kentucky. Wealthy planters and their families used to come from miles around to the springs and camp for a month or more.

The use of the waters, together with the out door life that was spent by the invalids worked miraculous cures and the place grew in favor.

The Civil war, with its wild alarms, its carnage and its guerrilla warfare put a stop to the practice of camping out at the springs. The broken fortunes that followed the war prevented many of the oldest devotees of the resort from coming back and it is only in a desultory way that it is now visited by health seekers.

TAR SPRINGS.

The famous Tar Springs are located four miles south of Cloverport. They are so situated that a boulevard or fine bicycle path can be easily built to them from the city and they can be also reached by the Victoria railroad. They are situated in one of the most beautiful and picturesque places in Breckenridge county. The massive rock cliff that towers above the springs, clothed with a mass of verdure and carpeted with the rarest of mosses and ferns makes it an ideally romantic spot. The waters of the springs are impregnated with magnesia, sulphur and a peculiar mineral tar that is wonderfully healing to the lungs. The experience and cures of three quarters of a century demonstrate these waters to be nature's own remedy for pulmonary complaints.

The Tar Springs property is owned by the "Henderson Route." It is an ideal place for a fashionable watering place and the owners are willing to lease or sell the property to any party or parties who erect a hotel thereon.

OTHER MINERAL SPRINGS.

At the home of Wm. J. Deane, Sr., at Glendearie is one of the best lithia springs in the world. Its waters have been examined and have been found to be strongly impregnated with this precious mineral substance. The waters of this spring cannot be excelled for the cure of kidney or bladder diseases. Numerous sulphur and magnesia springs abound in various parts of the county more or less known to local fame and would repay the investigations of capitalists.

SOCIAL ADVANTAGES.

Culture and Refinement Exemplified by Cloverport Citizens.

The people of Cloverport are noted throughout the country for their hospitality. The city contains more cultured and refined people in proportion to her population than the majority of communities throughout the United States.

The society is the very best and an open sesame to its sacred precincts is honesty, civility and respectability. The newcomer who possesses all the attributes of a lady or gentleman is welcomed with open arms and is at once made to feel at home.

The four flourishing church organizations, with their handsome houses of worship, speak volumes for the God loving character and the morality of her citizens.

The various social clubs and societies, the fraternal organizations and patriotic associations that flourish here are eloquent testimonials as to the exalted tone of local society. The secret societies represented are: The Maenner, Old

MISS ALLENE MURRAY, ONE OF CLOVERPORT'S MOST ACCOMPLISHED AND CHARMING YOUNG SOCIETY LADIES.

Fellow, Knights of Pythias, Knights and Ladies of Honor, Fraternal Order of Music, G. O. U. W. All have large membership and are in splendid physical and financial condition.
